

The Highway Rat

Complete the storyboard for the first half of the poem by drawing pictures to match the sentence.

The Highway Rat travelled along the highway, by horse, stealing food from travellers.	He met a rabbit, who was travelling along the road, and demanded she gave him her chocolate and cake.	The rabbit only had clover which The Highway Rat took from her, even though he thought it was tasteless.	He then stopped a squirrel and demanded his buns and biscuits.
The squirrel only had nuts so the Highway Rat took them, even though they were hard and rotten.	The Highway Rat then stopped some ants and demanded their toffees and chew.	The ants only had a lead which The Highway Rat stole, even though he thought it was bitter.	The Highway Rat carried on being rude and threatening people.
