

A squirrel came bounding along the road,
then stopped with a shake and a shiver,
For reining his horse was the Highway Rat, who thundered, "Stand and deliver!"

A rabbit came hopping along the road,
then stopped with her paws in the air,
For blocking her way was the Highway Rat, who cried out, "Who goes there?"

Some ants came crawling along the road,
then stopped with a somersault,
For baring his teeth was the Highway Rat,
who bellowed a deafening, "Halt!
Give me your sweets and your lollies!
Give me your toffees and chews!"

A fox came padding down the road,
Then stopped still, frozen to the spot,
Sitting high on his horse, the Highway Rat shouts,
"Stop! What have you got?"

Remember: The second and fourth lines have to have words that rhyme at the end.
