

L.O, I am learning to make inferences.

Use the thought bubble to make an inference about how Arthur is feeling at this point in the chapter.

Underline the evidence that makes you think this.

White-hot daylight stung his eyes and he cowered back from it, groaning. He was totally confused, having switched from night to day in an instant, and he began to panic, his breath coming in rapid, ragged gasps and his torso convulsing against the ropes that still bound his hands.
