

Snow

Winter winds blow cold and strong while days are short and nights are long.
Trees are bare and grass doesn't grow.
Sometimes, they are all covered in snow.

Snowflakes fall and blanket the ground.
This thick, white layer muffles all sound.
As all living things snuggle down in their homes,
many outdoor structures become smooth, white domes.

Soon, all creatures will come out to play
even if the clouds are all shades of grey.
The lure of fresh snow is hard to resist;
it's a rare opportunity that's not to be missed.
